FOREWORD

Chanchal College is situated in the northwest corner of the District of Malda with some remote, economically backward, communicably difficult regions surrounding it. Since its inception the college has kept itself engaged in spreading the light of education to the students who mostly come from the poverty stricken minority, tribal and backward classes and a significant number of them, are first generation learners.

Within the limited scope as a rural college we are trying our utmost to give the best of ourselves for the upliftment of our students. Living in the time of liberalization and globalization, and passing through a critical phase of corroding human values and ethics, we constantly endeavor to build their mental health by imparting value-based education. We hope that it will go a long way in developing in them an idea of tolerance and an understanding to respect others. It is always taken care of that the students develop a multifarious awareness about their surroundings and a progressive, scientific and rational outlook in their way of life so that they can come to the use of the society they live in some way or the other. We firmly believe that the sense of self and belongingness along with the sense of richness of our Indian cultural heritage that grow in our students through the educational procedures we follow will obviously help them develop into a better human being in their rest life.

During the last academic year the College has seen a sea-change in terms of progress and development in different dimensions especially in infrastructural development.

The College office has fully been computerized; two computer laboratories with AC have been prepared for the Department of Science and Geography and a well-developed play-ground. The efforts are going on to make college quality Institution in this region.

CHANCHAL COLLEGE

Chanchal is a Sub-Division of Malda District in West Bengal. It is the second largest sub-division town in Malda. It is located at 25.39° N & 87.99° E. Chanchal College is a premier College in North Malda.

It was established on 26th August, 1969 with an aim to imparting higher education to the students of North Malda which is most backward minority concentrated region. It is presently affiliated to the University of Gour Banga.

It is housed at the heritage building of Chanchal Palace. It was the home of Raja Saratchandra Rai Bahadur, who built the Chanchal Palace. One part of the palace was transformed into a Govt. aided College in 1976. The kind hearted Chanchal Raj Sri Sisir Kumar Mukherjee donated a part of the palace amounting 6.86 acres of the land for educational upliftment of this region.

The College has Arts, Science and Commerce departments. Right now, it imparts 11 (eleven) Honours & 15 (fifteen) General subjects. It accommodates NSS and NSOU study centre. It also is to accommodate Physics, Chemistry, Math & Geography laboratories for both Honours and General categories which require large space to run them in a decent manner. Also, there are plans as well as demand to open new subjects.

EMBLEM:

The emblem bears the rising sun over an atomic structure which signifies the aspiration and achievement of mankind in the field of knowledge.

OBJECTIVE

The College pursues the idea KNOWLEDGE IS POWER. It adapted the vision of empowering the backward people in general and minority communities in particular with modern higher education.

Chanchal College is situated North West of the district of Malda, surrounded by economically backward villages. The institution serves a major role in providing higher education to local students.

Vision

The College firmly believes in the motto "Knowledge is Power". Its vision is to empower the economically and socially backward people and minority communities by imparting higher education.

Mission

- Since its inception, the college has tried to provide the benefit of higher education to the students of diverse economic backgrounds and communities.
- Within its limitations of being a rural college, the institution tries its utmost to impart quality education for the upliftment of the students in and around Malda, many of whom are first generation learners.
- The institution aims to instill within its students moral values which will ultimately enable them to serve their country as responsible citizens.
- The College is committed to achieving long term institutional development by creating quality infrastructure and implementing new teaching methods and procedures following the Education policy of State and Central Governments.
